Marshall College is located at this place. It has fine buildings and a splendid compus of perhaps a dozen acres; but the school itself has not been as prosperous as its friends desired. The Regents know the facts in the case, and they have the wisdom and courage to apply the necessary remedy. The Commencement extroises last Friday evening were in some respects creditable to the young ladies and gentlemen of the graduating class; but there were too many words for the number of ideas expressed, and there was also a manifest lack of tact and sense in the general management of the school. On Saturday at 11 o'clock the diplomas were delivered, to the graduates at a special meeting held in the Methodist Church, the edifice having been kindly offered for the purpose by its popular pastor, J. W. Webb. Thereafter a graduating discourse of great beauty and power, was pronounced by our able and diligent State Superintendent Dr. Pendleton.

This visitation of the Normal schools has required heavy work, exposure, weariness, care and solicitude; but it has been for care and solicitude; but it has been for the conservation of a great interest—the demand, at once, of patriotism and religion. Of the inside things, in our own company, no profane ear must hear. The wise observations, the brilliant repartees, the racy anecdotes, the merry jibes—they can never be written, nor can they ever be forgotten. The Discussion on the Capital Question at Morgantown. MORGANTOWN, July 5, 1877.

Editors Intelligencer: Editors Intelligence:

Under the head of "Capital Notes," in your paper of July 3d, you refer to a dispatch sent from this place to the Register, touching the Capital discussion here, some days since, by "A. W. L.," a well known catapaw of "H. S. W.," late Public Printer, from which, without correction, an improper interence may be drawn.

In the first place, the dispatch was monstrous misrepresentation, known and spoken of here as such, and the reason it was not noticed and repelled at the time by the friends of Gen. Goff and Clarksburg was that the party sending the dis-patch was well if not favorably known here as having a big are to grind and had a motive in conciliating the Board of Re-gents, and especially that "biggest bull in the pen" H. S. W., one of the Regents, "A. W. L." and the redoubtable "H. S. W." were doing up matters here in ac-cordance with the old law—that Chalfant, a Clarksburg man, was removed as regent, and a more tractable man put in his place, while Walker, et id

To come back to the discussion referred to by you, we can assure you that the friends of Clarksburg are proud of and more than satisfied with the discussion on the part of Mr. Bassell and General Goff.
The results are seen every day in the expression of opinion by voters who have been inclined to vote for Charleston, and who now openly declare for Clarksburg. Without some change, not now contemplated, the vote for Clarksburg will be in the proportion of three to one.

burg will be in the proportion of three to one.

Gen. Goff literally held the large audience spell-bound, as much by the merit of his argument as the eloquent manner in which he presented his cause, the crowd constantly increasing during his allotted hour. In a few mements after Walker commenced his reply the audience started a stampede, making ominous whispers in which words and figures were used touching the record of that gentleman and the dust he kicked up whilst Public Printer.

How matural it was for "A. W. L." to soft solder Walker and Charleston, and for Walker in turn to boost "A. W. There has been a palpable dicker on the part of some parties here holding official relations to the University and parties at Charleston.
